SECTION 5.1 ATOMS (pages 107–108)

This section describes early atomic theories of matter and provides ways to understand the tiny size of individual atoms.

► Early Models of the Atom (pages 107–108)

1. Democritus of Abdera, who lived in Greece during the fourth century B.C., suggested that matter is made up of tiny particles that cannot be divided. He called these particles atoms.
2. List two reasons why the ideas of Democritus were not useful in a scientific sense. They did not explain chemical behavior, and they lacked experimental support because scientific testing was unknown at the time.
3. The modern process of discovery about atoms began with the theories of an English schoolteacher named John Dalton.
4. Circle the letter of each sentence that is true about Dalton's atomic theory.
 - a. All elements are composed of tiny, indivisible particles called atoms.
 - b. An element is composed of several types of atoms.
 - c. Atoms of different elements can physically mix together, or can chemically combine in simple, whole-number ratios to form compounds.
 - d. Chemical reactions occur when atoms are separated, joined, or rearranged; however, atoms of one element are never changed into atoms of another element by a chemical reaction.
5. In the diagram, use the labels mixture and compound to identify the mixture of elements A and B and the compound that forms when the atoms of elements A and B combine chemically.
