

Strategic Management Final Exam

Chapter 1—What Is Strategy and the Strategic Management Process?

Defining Strategy

- Strategy- theory about how to gain competitive advantage
 - A good strategy is one that generates such advantages
- Strategies are based on theories that firm's have to gain competitive advantages—these theories are based on a set of assumptions and hypotheses about the way competition in the industry will likely evolve and how that evolution can be exploited to earn a profit
- It is usually very difficult to predict precisely how competition will evolve and so it is rarely possible to know for sure that a firm is choosing the right strategy
 - This is why a firm's strategy is almost always a theory

The Strategic Management Process

- Strategic management process- a sequential set of analyses and choices that can increase the likelihood that a firm will choose a good strategy

A Firm's Mission

- The first step to the strategic management process
- Mission- long-term purpose of the firm
 - Defines both what a firm aspires to be in the long run and what it wants to avoid in the meantime
 - Broad statement of purpose and values
 - Often written in the form of mission statements
- Some missions may not affect performance
 - Most mission statements incorporate many common elements:
 - Define the business in which the firm will operate
 - How the firm will compete in those businesses
 - The core values that a firm espouses
- Some missions can improve performance
 - Visionary firms- firms whose mission is central to all they do
 - These types of firms usually have long-term profitability
- Some missions can hurt firm performance
 - Sometimes will be focused only on the personal values and priorities of the founders/top managers
