THE EXPEDITION 1,000 PROJECT

Dave Cornthwaite has big plans: to complete 25 separate journeys, each over 1000 km long, as part of his Expedition 1,000 project. But he isn't using cars, buses or planes: all of the 25 forms of transport he uses aren't motorised. He also hopes to raise £1,000,000 for charity.

His journey plans have spanned 11 continents and 60 different countries. His first trip was in 2000, when he drove his 5823 km across Australia on a skateboard. It was the longest, the slowest journey ever made. In 2007, he rode a tandem bicycle with a friend from the USA across the world, from Vegas in the US and then travelled for three months down the Atlantic coast from the north to south, spending much of the time engaged in his journey. He even had a partner in the journey.

His eight journeys over about Europe on an elliptical bike, which looks like an exercise bike and uses no machine, were the winter stands and pedals. On his last trip, Cornthwaite travelled Europe from Germany to the UK. But before he left, he let the public vote on social media for the kind of transport he used and discovered a list of 10.

One of Cornthwaite's most recent trips involved riding through China in the dawn on a White Swan. Before it's a mile, Steve used to be wary from Norway to Finland. It's a long and tough journey, travelling over 1000 km at an average speed of 10 km per hour.

His journeys have not been without problems. Once he was caught up by a forest fire in Michigan in the US, where a spreading fire forced him to run. In his vehicle, Steve is the only one to travel by motorcycle, he had to cope with freezing conditions, as well as road closures.

He promised to change his life from that point on. And he did.

STUDY SKILLS

How can you predict what a text is about?

► STUDY SKILLS page 94

Cornthwaite met a female partner in 2002, a 53-year, 1617 km cycle about the Missouri River in the US. He was the first to ride the trail but came more than 100 miles at one time, finishing a 10 km distance in half of the expedition's time. He rode the first 240 km, and just nine miles later he discovered the remains of 1920s cars. In the last few days, the weather was generally good and his only problems were due to cold weather.

Cornthwaite is not just an explorer but a professional. He was working as a graphic designer in some English cities and had his own consultancy. The first results were good: jobs, a nice house and a car. However, while he was still in his job, he started to see things in a different way. On his business trip, he explained that in 2005, he suddenly realised that every day was the same and he felt he had become lazy.
