

Unit 10: Surveying in Construction and Civil Engineering

Unit code:	J/600/0224
QCF Level 3:	BTEC Nationals
Credit value:	10
Guided learning hours:	60

● Aim and purpose

The aim of this unit is to enable learners to develop skills in linear and levelling surveys, measuring angles and setting out of small buildings.

● Unit introduction

Land surveying is concerned with the measurement of existing features of the natural and built environment and the presentation of data in a format suitable for architects and engineers to use in the design of construction projects. It plays an important role in the early stages of the design process, and has clear links with the setting out process.

Setting out is the process by which information is taken from construction design drawings to enable pegs, profiles or other marks to be set out to control construction work, and ensure that each element of the work is constructed in the correct position and to the correct level. In some senses setting out is the opposite of surveying, but the instruments and basic principles of measurement and accuracy are the same and people will often work in both disciplines.

This unit is practical, and learners will spend a significant amount of time carrying out fieldwork and producing drawings. There are also opportunities to use electronic instruments and CAD. Learners will need a reasonable standard of arithmetic and trigonometry in order to complete this unit successfully.

Learners will become familiar with basic surveying techniques, be able to carry out simple surveying tasks and present the data, and understand the roles of surveying and setting out in the construction process.

● Learning outcomes

On completion of this unit a learner should:

- 1 Be able to perform linear surveys to produce drawings
- 2 Be able to perform levelling surveys to produce drawings
- 3 Be able to measure angles and produce results from calculations
- 4 Be able to perform the setting out of small buildings.
