1. Martin Luther was a German monk who started the Protestant Reformation in 1517. He was a member of the Catholic Church but disagreed with some of its teachings. He wrote 95 Theses, which were a list of 95 statements that criticized the Catholic Church. His ideas spread quickly, and many people began to leave the Catholic Church and join other Protestant churches.

2. The Protestant Reformation led to the creation of many new churches, including Lutheranism, Calvinism, and Anglicanism. These churches were based on the Bible and the teachings of Jesus Christ, rather than on the traditions and teachings of the Catholic Church.

3. The Protestant Reformation also led to the development of new religious practices, such as the use of vernacular languages in church services and the emphasis on personal faith and salvation. This led to the growth of literacy and the spread of the Bible among ordinary people.

4. The Protestant Reformation had a major impact on the world, leading to the development of modern democracy and the separation of church and state. It also led to the development of many new religious and social movements, including the Quakers and the Methodists.
