Decision Modes in Complex Task Environments Norbert Steigenberger,Thomas Lübcke,Heather Fiala,Alina Riebschläger,2017-05-25 Despite intense research on decision making in action we still know little about when decision makers rely on deliberate vs intuitive decision making in decision situations under complexity and uncertainty Building on default interventionist dual processing theory this book studies decision making modes deliberate vs intuitive in complex task environments contingent on perceived complexity experience and decision style preference We find that relatively inexperienced decision makers respond to increases in subjective complexity with an increase in deliberation and tend to follow their decision style preference Experienced decision makers are less guided by their decision preference and respond to increases in subjective complexity only minimally This book contributes to a developing stream of research linking decision making with intra personal and environmental properties and fosters our understanding of the conditions under which decision makers rely on intuitive vs deliberate decision modes In doing so we go one step further towards a comprehensive theory of decision making in action
