

Analog Communication Technique Note 5

Baseband vs Passband Transmission

- Baseband signals:
  - Voice (0-4kHz)
  - TV (0-6 MHz)
- A signal may be sent in its baseband format when a dedicated wired channel is available.
- Otherwise, it must be converted to passband.

Modulation

- Modulation is a process that convert a message signal into a suitable form to transmit over a long distance through a communication channel.
- This is necessary because the message signal being a low frequency signal, that cannot be transmitted efficiently over the channel directly.

What is Modulation?

- The process of shifting the baseband signal (low frequency signal) to passband range or high frequency is called Modulation.
- In the modulation process, some characteristic of a high-frequency carrier signal (band pass), is changed according to the instantaneous value of the information (baseband) signal.
- The process of shifting the passband signal to baseband frequency range is called Demodulation.

Need for Modulation

- There are various reasons why modulation is necessary in electronic communication systems.
- Ease of Radiation / Transmission: It is extremely difficult to radiate low frequency signals from an antenna in the form of electromagnetic energy.

become a reality a number of key technologies are required In brief these technologies need to be sensitive responsive interconnected contextualised transparent and intelligent RFID and in particular passive RFID tags are such a technology In order to deliver the necessary characteristics that could lead to ambient intelligence however there are some challenges that need to be addressed Remote powering of the tags is probably the most important challenge Issues concerning the antenna tag interface and the rectifier design that allow the RF signal to be converted to Direct Current DC are top priorities Secondly the communication link and the reader should be optimized The RF signal that contains the tag data suffers from a power of four decay with the distance between tag and reader As a result both the reader sensitivity and the tag backscattered power efficiency have to be maximized Long range powering as well as sufficient communication quality are the guidelines of this work This work proposes a linear two port model for an N stage modified Greinacher full wave rectifier It predicts the overall conversion efficiency at low power levels where the diodes are operating near their threshold voltage The output electrical behavior of the rectifier is calculated as a function of the received power and the antenna parameters Moreover the two port parameter values are computed for particular input voltages and output currents for the complete N stage rectifier circuit using only the measured I V and C V characteristics of a single diode Also presented in this work is an experimental procedure to measure how the impedance modulation at the tag side affects the signal at the reader The method allows the tag designer to efficiently predict the effect of a modulator design at the system level and gives a useful instrument to choose the most appropriate impedances Finally the design of a fully integrated remotely powered and addressable RFID tag working at 2.45GHz is described The achieved operating range at a 4W Effective Isotropically Radiated Power EIRP reader transmit power is at most 12 m The Integrated Circuit IC is implemented in a 0.5 um silicon on sapphire technology A state of the art rectifier design is embedded to supply energy to the transponder Inductive matching and a folded dipole antenna are key elements for achieving this performance
