Foundations, Consumers, And Producers William David Anthony Bryant,2023-02-17 People pursue their own interests whatever those interests might be Some people have interests that are narrow and selfish while others have interests that are broad and altruistic The idea that people are self interested underpins all of economic analysis and raises two fundamental questions 1 How do people choose the actions they think will further their own interests 2 Can the potentially conflicting interests of different people be made to mesh in some sort of socio economic equilibrium This book is devoted to a detailed study of the first question Its Companion Volume Economy Wide Microeconomics Equilibrium Optimality Applications and Tests makes a detailed study of the second question Following some foundational remarks this book studies the Arrow Debreu theory of consumer choice That theory supposes people choose so as to maximize a complete continuous transitive and reflexive binary preference relation over a non empty and compact choice set The book then studies numerous refinements generalizations and extensions of each of these restrictions up to and including recent work on Behavioral theories of choice and choice behaviour when preferences are intransitive incomplete discontinuous Also considered is choice behaviour in environments that are not necessarily compact A study is also made of intertemporal choice and choice under uncertainty The study of Arrow Debreu choice theory and its extensions are presented from the Primal Dual and Revealed Preference points of view Consumers are not the only agents in the economy as Producers are present as well Beginning with a study of the Arrow Debreu idea that producers choose from a convex production set so as to maximize profit the book considers extensions and generalizations of this framework particularly to non convex environments The study is presented from the Primal and Dual points of view The final chapter in the book provides a link to its Companion Volume The Chapter indicates how the theories of consumer and producer choice studied here help inform answers of the second question posed above Resources are available to instructors who adopt this book More details at www.worldscientific.com/worldscibooks/10.1142/12789\_sm

Finance in America Kevin R. Brine, Mary Poovey, 2017-11-16 The history of what we call finance today does not begin in ancient Mesopotamia or in Imperial China or in the counting houses of Renaissance Europe This timely and magisterial book shows that finance as we know it the combination of institutions regulations and models as well as the infrastructure that manages money credit claims banking assets and liabilities emerged gradually starting in the late nineteenth century and coalesced only after World War II Kevin Brine a financial industry veteran and Mary Poovey a historian lay bare the history of finance in the United States over this critical period They show how modern finance made itself known in episodes such as the 1907 Bankers Panic on Wall Street passage of the Federal Reserve Act in 1913 and the marginalist tax policies adopted by the federal government in the 1920s Over its long history the distinctive feature of modern economics has been its reliance on mathematical modeling Brine and Poovey show how this reliance came about and how economists themselves understand it Finance in America An Unfinished Story provides the long view that we need to advance our national conversation about the place of finance The story is unfinished because the 2009 financial crisis opened a perilous new chapter in this history with reverberations that are still felt throughout the world How we arrived at this most recent crisis is impossible to understand without the kind of history that Brine and Poovey provide here

Arguing About Tastes David Kreps, 2023-11-28

Mainstream economics considers individual preferences to be fixed and unchanging Although psychologists and other social scientists explore how tastes are formed influenced and evolve it is not considered proper in orthodox economics to do so Arguing About Tastes makes the case that economists should abandon the principle that preferences are fixed and instead incorporate into their work how context and experience shape individual tastes David M Kreps argues that the discipline must account for dynamic personal tastes when it comes to understanding social exchange emphasizing human resource management and on the job behavior He develops formal models that illustrate the power of intrinsic motivation and show why applying extrinsic incentives can be counterproductive Kreps weighs the advantages and disadvantages of the principle de gustibus non est disputandum there is no arguing about tastes He calls for a new era of economics in which preferences are taken into account and not for granted Arguing About Tastes concludes with responses by the distinguished economists Alessandra Casella and Joseph E Stiglitz and a final reply by Kreps
