

Body Styles

Globe-style bodies feature smooth, streamlined, constant-area internal passages with no pockets, permitting high capacity with minimum turbulence. They are designed with nearly constant wall thickness, providing lower weight and cost when manufactured in expensive stainless or alloy steels.

Three-way bodies are used for either combining or diverting services. Due to Flowserve's excellent parts interchangeability, a standard globe valve easily converts to three-way service with the addition of a three-way adaptor, upper seat ring, two gaskets, three-way plug and longer bonnet flange studs.

Except for the body and 1.5-inch (DN 40) seat ring, the angle-style Mark One valve is completely interchangeable with the globe style — all other valve parts remain the same. For additional body protection, a venturi seat-ring, extending to the outlet flange, is available.

The steam-jacketed Mark One valve uses a standard globe style body with oversized, blind flanges for a full jacket or standard flanges for a partial jacket. The jacket is rated for 150 psig (10.3 barg) and is equipped with a 0.75-inch NPT supply and drain connection.
