

When documenting care, physical therapists should be knowledgeable about the implications of electronic health records (EHRs), especially the increased regulatory risks related to coding, patient safety, and malpractice. Many physical therapists leverage the benefits of medical transcription outsourcing to ensure accurate and prompt EHR documentation. Maintaining adequate, defensible medical records is crucial for patient safety and for physical therapists to demonstrate compliance and avoid malpractice liability. The American Physical Therapy Association (APTA) stresses that creating “documentation throughout the episode of care is a professional responsibility and a legal requirement”. Let’s take a look at the best practices for defensible documentation in physical therapy and how therapists can demonstrate integrity in practice through documentation.

According to the APTA, proper documentation of services is crucial for the following reasons:

- Serves as a record of patient or client care, including a report of the individual’s status, physical therapist management and outcome of physical therapist intervention.
- Serves as a tool for the planning and provision of services and a communication vehicle among providers.
- Demonstrates the physical therapist’s abilities, unique body of knowledge, and services provided.
- Demonstrates compliance with federal, state, payer, and local regulations.
- Provides an historical account of patient and client encounters that can be used as evidence in potential legal situations.
- May be used to demonstrate appropriate service utilization and payment for many payers.

Defensible cases where the provider apparently delivered excellent care have been lost or settled because of poor documentation. In 2016, www.beckersspine.com reported on how lack of proper documentation was one of the reasons that led an Oklahoma orthopedic practice to pay about $1.54 million to settle a civil claim suit.

A physical therapy claims case study published by the Healthcare Providers Service Organization (HPSO) in 2006 also shows how inadequate documentation
