* Elmer Miller

Introduction

All human beings are part of society and everyone in the society has different social roles and duties. While performing his role and duties, individual faces many problems in case of which some which needed his performance as a social being. Casework is the oldest and the most developed method of solving individual's problems and improving his social relations. In this and we will discuss the concept of casework and its evolution in solving these problems. We will also study the evolution and historical development of casework in the West and in India.

The Nature of Individual

Every individual is unique and his/her needs are different from others in society. Consequently, the treatment given to approach to one individual cannot be used for the other individual. The evolutionary nature of behaviour and the individual differences Casework studies has given following propositions:

- The individual's behaviour is conditioned by his/her environment and his/her life experiences. Behaviour refers to acting, feeling, thinking, etc. Attributes of human being are not available to others.
