

DNA/Molecular markers

- The DNA markers are related to variation in genomic DNA sequences of different individuals.
- They are based on naturally occurring polymorphism in DNA sequence i.e. base pair addition, deletion, substitution.
- DNA markers are unlimited in number and are not affected by environmental factors and the developmental stage of the plant(Winter&Kahl,1995).
- These markers are selectively neutral because they are usually located in non-coding regions of DNA.
