Lecture Notes for Week 3
Thomas Kishore

Introduction

- A foundation is an integral part of the structure which transfers the load of the superstructure to the soil. A foundation is that member which provides support for the structure and its loads.
- It includes the soil and rock of earth's crust and any special part of structure that serves to transmit the load into the rock or soil.
- If the soil conditions immediately below the structure are sufficiently strong and capable of supporting the required load, then shallow spread footings can be used to transmit the load.
- On the other hand, if the soil conditions are weak, then piles or piers are used to carry the loads into deeper, more suitable soil.
